How to use the 2007 Student Handbook

The Student Handbook has been divided into six main sections to ensure that information is easily accessible. These sections include:

1. General Information (Principal Dates, Contact Information etc.)
2. Faculties of the University
3. Student Services and Information
4. Course Information
5. Unit Information
6. Rules

Tables of content and indexes are at the beginning of each of these six sections.

Do you want to find a course?

If you know the name of the course you are interested in….  Turn to the first page of the Course Information section (page 40) where you will find an alphabetical listing of all courses.

Course details include such important information as the course code, the campus where the course is taught, its duration, course rules, and the schedule of units which need to be studied.

Do you want to find details of individual units that form part of a course?

If you know the name of the unit you are interested in….  Turn to the Index of unit names on page 342

If you know the unit code and want to find details of the unit…..  Turn to the Unit Descriptions by Unit Code on page 364

You should always take account of course and unit availability when planning our studies. You can check the availability of both courses and units by viewing the Schedule of Units on the website www.scu.edu.au/scheduleofunits.
Do you want to find out about a particular rule?

If the issue is general in nature relating to University policy on admissions, enrolment, assessment rules, fees and charges, then….

If the issue is more course specific, and therefore may not be applicable to all courses, then….

Turn to the Rules section of the Student Handbook on page 493

Turn to the Course Details for your course (a Course Information index is provided on page 40) where you will find details of the specific course rules.

To get the full picture, you should refer to both the Rules section in the Student Handbook and the specific course rules detailed under the relevant course entry.

Further information about University governance and rules can be found in the 2007 Calendar. The Calendar is an on-line publication and can be found at the following web address www.scu.edu.au/calendar.

† Study Week  # Examinations
Principal Dates for 2007

The academic year is divided into semesters and trimesters.

Seminsters

Each semester is of 17 weeks duration (numbered 1–17). Each semester comprises 13 teaching weeks, 2 non–teaching weeks and 2 assessment weeks. Asian Semesters commence later than standard semesters, but are identical in length and format. For standard semesters, a 4-week recess occurs between first and second semesters. The summer recess extends from early-November to late February.

Trimesters

There are 3 trimesters (1, 2 and 3), each of 15 weeks duration (numbered 1–15). Each trimester comprises 13 teaching weeks and 2 assessment weeks. Asian Trimesters commence later than standard trimesters, but are identical in length and format. For standard trimesters, a non-teaching week occurs between each trimester. A five-week recess occurs from mid-December to late January.
